

Man shoots brother over stolen whiskey

By Whitney Leggett
CV&T News Editor

A sibling dispute over stolen alcohol led to an attempted murder on Peyton Avenue Monday night.

According to a uniform citation from Irvine Division of Police Captain Adrian McKinney, Bobby White, 29, of Hudson Avenue, had gone to a friend's house on

N. Plum Street to drink.

White reported going out to his scooter to find his whiskey. While at his scooter, he discovered his whiskey was gone and told police he suspected his brother had taken it.

He drove to Peyton Avenue and confronted his brother, Larry White, which led to a physical altercation.

According to the citation, "Larry pushed him twice. He [Bobby] got on his scooter to leave and Larry pushed him off of it."

Bobby told McKinney that Larry reached into his pocket and "he saw something shiny." Bobby then drew his .25-caliber pistol and shot Larry.

IDP Chief Brad Smith said there was only one shot fired. The shot traveled through Larry White's hand and into his abdomen.

Larry was removed from the scene and taken to Marcum & Wallace Memorial Hospital and then airlifted to University of Kentucky Medical Center.

McKinney was assisted by District 1 Constable Danny Conrad and Ravenna Police Chief Ken White and Officer James Gross.

Bobby White gave a full recorded and written confession to police.

He was housed at the Estill County Jail. Bond was set at $75,000 cash.

Garland "Andy" Barr won the race for U.S. representative with 904 votes against Patrick J. Kelly II and Curtis Kenimer.

At press time, Barr had also won at the state level with nearly 20,000 votes and Romney had won at the republican presidential primary with 67.2 percent of the votes. However, Obama had won the primary with 59.6 percent of the democratic vote.

Last week members of the LEAP program from Estill, Powell, Lee and Jackson Counties toured the hills and hollows of Jackson County to learn about agriculture and economic development.

Participants of the program meet each month in one of their four communities to cover a different topic, according to Joe Crawford, EDA director and steering committee member for LEAP.

As the group learned of several innovative businesses in Jackson County, they also found that some of them currently offer opportunities to Estill Countians.

Beginning with a stop at Jackson Energy farms outside of McKee, Larry Lakes, JE district manager, said that his company offers grants and low-interest loans to potential new businesses in their service area.

Keith Gabbard, general manager of People's Rural Telephone Cooperative which serves Jackson and Owsley counties, also addressed the group. His company is in the process of making the transition from copper telephone and internet wiring to fiber optics.

"Fiber-to-the-Home" will increase bandwidth to all internet customers. Broadband internet is already available to nearly all of Jackson and Owsley counties, but the switch to fiber will provide some of the fastest and most advanced internet technology in the country.

PRTC, also a partner with Appalachian Wireless, reinvests in local communities by offering grant money for new small businesses and awarding scholarships to area students.

The group quickly switched gears as they traveled from the Jackson Energy campus and discussions of advanced technology to Triple R Ranch and Happy

West Irvine construction expected to be finished by Nov. 1

By Kyle Woosley
KPA Intern

Randall Christopher, assistant superintendent for the Estill County School District, gave the update on the construction on West Irvine Elementary School at a meeting of the Estill County Board of Education last week.

Christopher said construction on the school has been smooth overall.

"If all of them would go as nicely as that one, we'd build another," Christopher said. "I hope our local community sees what can be done."

Christopher said there is some excess soil that may be used to create a better field for the school.

"Our hope is before school starts to have a parent drop-off loop at least 80 percent done," Christopher said.

Christopher said the roof is expected to be complete within the next 45 days.

Despite a few delays due to flooding from heavy rainfall, Christopher said the expected completion date for the school is Nov. 1.

"If the weather holds up, we'll get where we talked about," Christopher said.

Another topic of discussion was the termination of the school resource officer, which Superintendent Bert Hensley said has to do with the cost.

"That mainly has to do with the amount of money we spend there," Hensley said. "What we get from the state has been greatly cut year in and year out."

Hensley said he assures the termination of the position has nothing to do with the quality of the professional.

"It has nothing to do with what quality we've got, but how much we spend on it," Hensley said.

The salary schedule for next year was presented, but Hensley said no raises were expected at this time.

"It doesn't indicate any raises at this time," Hensley said. "We finished so early it's kind of throwing everything in an odd time of year."

The tentative budget for the upcoming academic year was also presented at the meeting, but Hensley said it's looking similar to last year.

"We have a minor idea of how much money we'll get from the state," Hensley said. "It looks like it will be pretty close to what we got last year."

Hensley said the budget is subject to change based on student attendance, which has gone up to 94 percent.

"That's a help too," Hensley said.

The final budget will be announced at the September school board meeting, said Hensley.

The meeting began by recognizing 10 teachers from the Estill County School district who were retiring this year. (SEE PHOTOS)

Students from the Estill County High School FCCLA presented their project to the school board. The students were granted funding for a trip to Orlando, Fla. for national competition.

"The change is unbelievable what these teachers had to learn," Hensley said. "It's been amazing how these teachers had to grow over 30 years. So on behalf of the board, thank you."

A group of Estill County High School FCCLA members were also recognized for their presentation on the dangers of Styrofoam on the environment at their regional competition. The team will be heading to Orlando, Fla. for national competition.

The school board is planning to conduct their annual evaluation of the superintendent next month.

"We want to sit down and set goals with the superintendent," said Jami Price, chairperson of the board. "We're going to let Mr. Hensley tell us what his goals are and what he expects."

The next board meeting is scheduled for June 21.

Hollow Farm.
Bob Hornsby, owner of both farms, said the Triple R Ranch was once home to a drug operation but is now the site of "Cowboy Up for Christ," a non-profit ministry for children.

"Every Monday night, we teach kids how to ride and care for horses," he said. Each session, beginning at 6:00 p.m., ends with a hot meal, a devotional, singing and prayer.

"We begin with teaching the kids responsibility of horse ownership," Hornsby said. They eventually progress until "we can turn them loose on a horse."

He said that he has yet to hear a disrespectful word come out of the mouths of any of his young visitors. "A lot of them come from the apartments in McKee. We are hearing that this is making a huge difference in the way they act at school."

Hornsby explained that anyone is welcome to bring children to the ranch on Monday nights for the program. He also stated the need for volunteers to help exercise the horses, groom them, and do other horse-related chores.

The ranch hosts trail rides, sells cookbooks, and accepts donations to finance the operation.

"The dedication and commitment they have made to God and to servicing the kiddos in our region has simply humbled me," said Jessica Dennis Mullins, a member of the LEAP committee. "It is a hidden jewel for sure. I want to do more to support and encourage them. Everybody needs to visit!"

LEAP participants were also treated to a hay ride around the scenic rolling hills of Happy Hollow Farm.

The pastures are divided into six different fields and the cattle are moved every 7 days.

"They will let you know when they are ready to be moved, but we leave them one more day to make sure they eat everything," Hornsby said.

Rotational grazing allows him to pasture more cattle at less cost and requires less feeding of hay in the winter.

Following a picnic lunch of steak and baked potatoes provided by the Jackson Cattleman's Association at the Triple R Ranch, LEAP participants traveled to the Jackson County Regional Food Center.

A licensed shared-use kitchen, the center is open to anyone who would like to process a product for market such as salsa, jams, jellies, salad dressings, barbecue sauce, relishes and chowchow.

The center also processes poultry. In a few hours, chickens can be butchered, cleaned, vacuum-sealed and packed on ice, ready for retail and wholesale sales.

A honey extraction unit is available for use by regional bee keepers. Any grower or producer may call 606-364-3436 or visit www.jcfoodcenter.com for further information.

The group completed the tour with a stop by Diversified Phillips Manufacturing in the Jackson Industrial Park.

Mark Reese, Eastern Kentucky University Educational Extension Agent and member of the LEAP steering committee, volunteered to be the "tour guide" for the event in the absence of Rodney Chrisman from Jackson Energy who created the day's agenda but was attending a conference out of state.

Mitchell said the hiker may have also sustained an ankle injury.

"Five different agencies arrived at the scene," Mitchell said. "But the EMS were the first to be there."

In addition to the Rescue Squad and the EMS, the Madison County Rescue Team, Richmond Fire and Rescue and the Estill County Fire Department also responded.

Mitchell said rescue crews had to use a rope to lift the hiker from the bottom of the cliff and then carried him in a basket.

It took approximately three hours for the hiker to be taken out of the woods.

Mitchell said the hiker was transported to Marcum & Wallace Memorial Hospital to be treated.

At press time the name of the hiker was still unknown.

News editor excited to tell stories of Estill County

In the summer of 2010 I wrote a column introducing myself to the people of Estill County. I talked about how my passion for journalism grew from being mentored in high school, my growth as a journalist and how excited and honored I was to have been chosen as the Kentucky Press Association summer intern by none other than Rhonda Smyth.

I had interviewed at other newspapers and was turned down because of a lack of experience. Isn't that what an internship is designed for? I was so depressed and thought to myself, "How am I supposed to get experience if no one will even take a chance on me?" It just didn't seem fair.

I was lucky that Rhonda called me and liked me enough to ask me to come work for her. That summer I covered meetings, the fair, Relay for Life, wrote a weekly column and wrote feature articles about people I met in the community. I cried when I had to leave to go back to school.

Whitney Leggett
CV&T News Editor

Little did I know, two years later I would be preparing myself to step into Rhonda's position and to help train my own intern.

Since I found out that Teresa Hatfield-Barger chose me for the position, the last several months have been ones of huge transition in my life.

In March I started looking for jobs, in April I found one and in May I graduated from Eastern Kentucky University with a bachelor's degree in journalism.

Just a few weeks later I started back at the Citizen Voice & Times. I cannot begin to describe how relieved and excited I am to have been hired as the news editor at the CV&T. Last week I was introduced all around town, visited some friends I have already made at the courthouse and started covering news full force.

This week will be my first full week at the paper and as of Wednesday morning, I will officially be the news editor.

Even more transitions are headed my way as I will be moving to Estill County in June. Although I am nervous to be moving away from home, I am excited to called myself an Irvinite. I can't wait to get settled into the newspaper, my new home and the community.

I have already experienced so much generosity and kindness in just my first week. I've been invited to church, to events and I was greeted with smiles across the board.

"...I owe the most thanks to my readers and the people of Estill for welcoming me with open arms."

I owe lots of thanks to Rhonda for taking me under her wing and helping to mold into the best journalist that I can be. I have much growing and learning to do, but thanks in large part to her, I am prepared to pave my own way.

I also must thank Teresa for trusting her newspaper in my hands. As I learned this week, I follow a long line of fine editors who have done big things in Kentucky journalism.

Lastly, I owe the most thanks to the my readers and the people of Estill for welcoming me with open arms. I have felt so welcome here since day one. I am blessed to have been placed in a community of people so willing to let me tell their stories.

Summer intern reflects on journalism experiences

Most college students don't know what they want to do with their lives. They switch their major day in and day out; just trying to figure out what career they want when they finally graduate. I was not one of these people.

I was never one of those people who had given much thought to life after school. But during my sophomore year, in an attempt to figure out what my niche was, I enrolled in my first journalism class.

Though my high school did not have an outstanding journalism program, I tried to make do. And in the first, and only, publication we put out that semester, I snagged my first front page story. Ever since that moment, I knew what I was meant to do.

When I decided to attend Morehead State University, I was able to write a few things, but, due to extenuating circumstances, I could not make the time or dedication to continue writing for my campus newspaper. Because of this, I ended up switching my major to public relations.

After my second year at Morehead, I realized it was not the place for me and made the decision to transfer to Eastern Kentucky University and give journalism another shot. The moment I walked into the office of The Eastern Progress, I felt this energy.

Everyone in there was serious about this as a career. The atmosphere had the hustle of bustle that was part of the reason I wanted to pursue this in the first place.

During my time at The Progress, I have covered a range of things. Many of which were events, seminars and updates of school projects. But I've also had my fair share of hard news.

My first big story was an arson that occurred in a residence hall on campus. When I was assigned the story, I had no idea what I was getting myself into. It was at this point when I was able to see a different, more serious side to journal-

"...I'm looking forward to leaving my mark on this town."

Once I became the assistant news editor, part of my duty was to cover student government. This had never been my specialty. In fact, my freshman year of college I took a government course, fell asleep the entire first week and ended up switching it out for something else.

But once I attended a few meetings and began building relationships with these people, I discovered another part of journalism I had never given much thought to: people.

I soon became entangled in covering government affairs. All of a sudden policies, elections and political scandals all seemed so important.

But quite possibly one of the most difficult things I have ever covered was a double-murder arrest that occurred in April.

An Eastern student had been arrested after confessing to the murder to two Richmond residents. I drove to the courthouse a few hours before deadline to pick up a 42-page affidavit about what had occurred two years ago. The things I came across in this document were quite possibly some of the most disturbing things I have ever read.

However, something came over me. I pulled out a 600-word story about what happened in about an hour, along with statements from the Richmond Police and Madison County Detention Center. And though it was a disturbing situation, it was also an exciting experience. I felt like Clark Kent or Lois Lane, minus the Superman powers.

My experiences as a journalist have me a very well-rounded individual and I hope to use these experiences to make my time at the Citizen Voice & Times memorable. And though my opinions on certain things don't always agree with the majority, I'm looking forward to leaving my mark on this town.

Ted's Frankfort Report

It's important to remember the real meaning of Memorial Day

We're fast approaching a very special day next week: Memorial Day or, as some of us still call it, Decoration Day.

It's a day that means different things to different people. For many, it's just another long weekend, or the unofficial start of summer. It's marked with vacations, campouts, or backyard cookouts. For others, it's a day of reunion, used to reconnect with far-off family members, to catch up, reminisce and remember loved ones who have passed on.

The original meaning of the one holiday we reserve for memory, though, is to honor those who made the ultimate sacrifice to ensure our freedom and our way of life.

We have the pleasure and the privilege of living in the greatest nation in the world, maybe even the greatest in history. But we didn't just become that way overnight. It took hard work, and even harder sacrifice, to make America what she is.

More than a million men and women have given their lives to create and preserve the United States of America. Their collective service spans continents and centuries. Bound together by a common goal to protect America and to make the world a better place, their contribution has been and remains immeasurable. Some of them were your family members and friends. Some, you remember. All, we honor.

Our armed forces have fought through the centuries to ensure we have the freedom to enjoy 'life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness,' as the Declaration proclaims. The best tribute you can pay to them is to make the most of the opportunities you've been given.

Freedom is one of the greatest gifts we receive. Don't squander it or take it for granted. A high cost was paid for us to be able to openly speak our minds, to elect our own leaders, to choose our religion and to make our own way in life – not held back by any social caste system or repressive form of government.

So on Memorial Day – a day set aside to remember those who, in Lincoln's great words, 'gave the last full measure of devotion.' – let's make it our goal to honor the sacrifices of our past and present soldiers and veterans more than just one day a year. Let's honor them with our lives.

Because it wasn't holidays or ceremonies they fought and died for.

They died for ordinary American days. Precious unexceptional weekends in quiet Appalachian communities where the humidity is starting to rise, the gardens are starting to grow and the kids are settling in for a summer of fun. Where families are setting out on their vacations and friends are gathering around camp fires, picnic tables, or the backyard grill. An America where we can live long, happy, productive lives of peace and freedom, deeply grateful to those who made it possible.

Fire damages VanCleve home

Fire severely damaged the Jesse VanCleve home at Hargett at about 1:30 Wednesday afternoon. The fire apparently started when Mrs. VanCleve attempted to burn some paper in the furnace in the basement. By the time Mrs. VanCleve could summon aid, the fire had spread to the underpinning of the house. Prompt action on the part of neighbors and passersby prevented the fire from destroying the seven room structure, but the damage was estimated at several thousand dollars. The home was partially covered by insurance.

May is National Osteoporosis Month

Osteoporosis is common, serious, and costly — and it can lead to an increased risk of bone fractures, typically in the wrist, hip, and spine. Often called a silent disease because bone loss occurs without symptoms, people may not know that they have osteoporosis until their bones become so weak that a sudden bump or fall causes a fracture. Please join the Estill County Health Department this month by helping to raise awareness of osteoporosis and the importance of prevention and early detection in combating this disease.

Did You Know?

- About 10 million Americans have osteoporosis, and about 34 million more are at risk.
- One out of every 2 women and 1 in 4 men aged 50 and older will have an osteoporosis-related fracture in their lifetime.
- Twenty-four percent of hip fracture patients age 50 and older die in the year following their fracture.

While men and women of all ages and ethnicities can develop osteoporosis, certain risk factors are linked to the development of osteoporosis and contribute to an individual's likelihood of developing the disease.

- Gender – Women have a greater chance of developing osteoporosis due to less bone tissue and changes that occur due to menopause.

- Ethnicity – Caucasian and Asian women are at highest risk. African American and Hispanic women have lower but significant risk.
- Age – Older adults have greater risk of osteoporosis because bones become thinner and weaker with age.
- Body size – Small, thin-boned women are at greater risk.
- Diet – An inadequate intake of calcium and vitamin D over a lifetime makes an individual more prone to bone loss and contributes to the development of osteoporosis.
- Lifestyle – An inactive lifestyle or extended bed rest tends to weaken bones.
- Family history – Fracture risk may be due, in part, to heredity.
- Smoking – Women who smoke have lower levels of estrogen compared with nonsmokers, often go through menopause earlier, and may also absorb less calcium from their diets.
- Medication use. Long-term use of certain medications can lead to loss of bone density and fractures.
- Alcohol –Those who drink heavily are more

Kentucky author signs second contract

Less than three months ago, Earl Lowell “Robbie” Robbins, Jr., a.k.a “No Sweat,” formerly from Irvine and Ravenna, signed a contract with Old Seventy Creek Press giving the the rights to publish and release his first novel, These Precious Days. This week “No Sweat” signed a new contract with ITOH Press giving the the rights to publish and release his second novel, Nefarious. “I went for over thirty years and could not find a publisher that was willing to invest in my work,” Robbins said. “I had more than a thousand rejections. And now, in less than 100 days, I’ve been able to sell two different novels to two different publishers. The only request I made in this new contract was that I got to keep my pen name, No Sweat. Nefarious will be sent to the 2013 Pulitzer Committee in New York. The fact that I will have two different novels before the 2013 Pulitzer Committee feels good.” Nefarious is based on the life of Edward Hawkins, the first man legally hanged in Estill County, Kentucky. The two main characters in NEFARIOUS are Ed and his uncle Moses. Uncle Moses is a traveling preacher that teaches Ed bad things in a funny way.

Nerve agent rocket disassembly machine approved for shipment

Blue Grass Chemical Agent-Destruction Pilot Plant (BGCAPP) systems contractor Bechtel Parsons Blue Grass is bringing BGCAPP’s first nerve agent rocket disassembly machine, known as the Rocket Cutting Machine, to central Kentucky this month. “This is a significant milestone,” said Tom McKinney, Bechtel Parsons Blue Grass project manager. “The Rocket Cutting Machine is specifically designed for the BGCAPP project. Successfully demonstrating the machine’s capabilities during factory testing provides confidence the machine will perform during plant operations.” During BGCAPP plant operations, the remotely-controlled Rocket Cutting Machine will safely separate the rocket motor from the warhead section. The rocket warhead, which contains the agent and explosive components (energetics), is further processed to destroy the chemical agent and energetics. The machine will reside inside one of the Munitions Demilitarization Building’s (MDB) blast-proof rooms behind steel-laced concrete walls measuring more than 2-feet thick. “The Rocket Cutting Machine is the first BGCAPP machine built that was specifically designed to take the munitions apart so that the energetics and agent can be safely removed for neutralization,”said Jeff Brubaker, BGCAPP site project manager. Following a rigorous 2-year long fabrication and testing period in Pasco, Wash., the Assembled Chemical Weapons Alternatives (ACWA) Program Executive Office recently granted Bechtel Parsons Blue Grass approval to transport the Rocket Cutting Machine to Kentucky for future installation in the BGCAPP facility. The testing period alone involved the machine dissembling more than 2,600 mock rockets. The Rocket Cutting Machine is made of more than 12,000 customized components designed and fabricated by Bechtel Parsons Blue Grass. The machine is the seventh of 11 large pieces of equipment specifically designed, fabricated, and successfully tested as components of BGCAPP’s neutralization followed by supercritical water oxidation process. The remaining four are at different stages of fabrication or testing at facilities in Pasco, and San Diego, Calif. BGCAPP is being built to safely and efficiently destroy a stockpile of chemical weapons currently in storage at the Blue Grass Army Depot. The plant will destroy 523 tons of munitions containing blister and nerve agents. Currently, pilot plant construction is more than 51 percent complete and work is progressing on a variety of facilities to support chemical demilitarization operations. For more information on the project, please visit the Assembled Chemical Weapons Alternatives website at www.pmacwa.army.mil.

New Book and Movie Discussion Group Forming at Library

Estill County Public Library is forming a new discussion group as part of this year's Adult Summer Reading Program. The Books to Movies discussion group focuses on books adapted for the big screen. Each month, the group picks a book that was made into a movie to read. This discussion group is ideal for any individual who enjoys movies or likes reading various genres of books.

May's Book to Movie discussion title was Janet Evanovich's One for the Money. Copies of the book are available for check-out at the library's front desk. The movie version starring Katherine Heigl was how on May 18 at 6 p.m., at Estill County Public Library, with the discussion being held May 22, at 2 p.m. June's title is The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, featuring the movie with Robert Downey Jr.

High school students accepted to Kentucky Center Governor's School for the Arts program

This summer, The Kentucky Center will host over two hundred eager young artists from every region of the Commonwealth, as the Kentucky Center Governor's School for the Arts (GSA) takes place at Lexington's Transylvania University from June 17 to July 7.

During their three-week stay, 225 student artists from 43 counties will be immersed in a rigorous schedule of daily seminars, master-classes, lectures, hands-on workshops and field trips to regional arts attractions. Instruction will be offered in nine disciplines: Architecture, Creative Writing, Dance, Drama, Instrumental Music, Musical Theatre, New Media, Visual Art and Vocal Music.

Since 1987, more than 4,500 talented high school sophomores and juniors have attended the GSA summer program. The program will culminate on July 7 with an all-day festival that celebrates the achievements of Kentucky's young artists. Additionally, 21 colleges and universities currently offer scholarships to alumni of GSA.

Participating from Estill County is:

Shelby Arthur of Estill County High School (Architecture)

sary this year, GSA is a public/private partnership inaugurated in 1987 by the Kentucky Center, the Commonwealth of Kentucky and numerous private supporters. Today, the vital funding required to make GSA a reality is provided by the state through the leadership of the Governor's Office and the Kentucky Tourism, Arts and Heritage Cabinet, as well as the Kentucky Center Endowment Fund, Toyota Motor Manufacturing and more than 300 corporations, parents, educators, alumni and friends of GSA.

"...the best benefit of this program is that it literally cut our electric use in half!"

Rita Chrisman was so impressed with the impact her Jackson Energy Prepay Meter had on her energy bill that she sat down and wrote a letter!

In her letter, Rita explains that previously her winter electric bills would run above $500, but with the new Prepay Meter, bills dropped to just above $200...who wouldn't be excited with savings like that! She does such a great job of explaining how it works that we have posted her letter on our MyJacksonEnergy.com website for all members to read.

Thanks for sharing, Rita! Because of your experience we're sure many others will check out this energy-saving service!

ENCOURAGING WORD: FREEDOM IS NOT A DREAM

Howard Coop

Guest Columnist

Our nation, the United States of America, is known around the world as “the land of the free and the home of the brave” whose citizens love liberty, cherish freedom, and are willing to pay the price for these precious possessions. So, people from all over the world desire to come here.

The freedom we cherish is not a mere dream; it is a constitutional guarantee. In the Bill of Rights, adopted as the first ten amendments to the constitution on December 15, 1791, freedom is defined in clear and concise language.

The first freedom to be defined is the freedom of religion: “Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof.”

The second freedom to be defined is the freedom of speech and the press: “Congress shall make no law... abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press.”

The third freedom to be defined is the freedom of assembly: “Congress shall make no law...abridging... the right of the people to peaceable assemble.”

The fourth freedom is the freedom to keep and bear arms: “A well-regulated militia, being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear arms, shall not be infringed.”

The Bill of Rights defines other freedoms, or rights, including regulations regarding search and seizure, provisions concerning prosecution, and the right to a speedy trial.

A walk though a cemetery on Memorial Day will be revealing. Small flags of our nation wafting in the May breeze will mark the graves of those who, in times of need, responded to the call of duty and served in the armed forces of our nation. Some returned, after a tour of duty, to resume a normal life. Others, wounded in service, returned to live with disability. But some made the supreme sacrifice and never returned.

Those small flags on those graves are poignant reminders that the cost of freedom is dear. Those buried in those graves risked everything to defend and preserve the freedom we cherish.

Mandatory motor vehicle insurance notices to begin statewide in June

Uninsured motorists risk cancellation of registrations

As mandated by the Kentucky Legislature, uninsured motorists across the commonwealth will begin receiving notices in June that registrations for their personal vehicles will be canceled if they do not obtain required insurance or show proof of existing insurance.

Registered owners of personal vehicles shown to have been without insurance for more than 60 days will receive the notices. The owners will have 30 days in which to obtain or present verification of coverage.

"It is against the law in Kentucky to operate a motor vehicle without insurance," said Commissioner Sharon P. Clark, of the Kentucky Department of Insurance. "Vehicle owners who abide by the law are too often victimized in crashes involving uninsured drivers. The legislature recognized that this was unfair and mandated this new enforcement initiative."

The mandatory insurance initiative is aimed at plugging an enforcement gap that enables drivers to skirt the law by dropping coverage once their vehicles have been registered. It will be administered by the Department of Vehicle Regulation, of the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet.

Though simple in concept, the mandatory insurance initiative required extensive technology and testing. Working together, the Department of Insurance, of the Public Protection Cabinet, and the Department of Vehicle Regulation, of the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet, conducted a pilot enforcement program that grew to include eight Kentucky counties - Anderson, Ballard, Boyd, Bullitt, Christian, Laurel, Pike and Pulaski.

Each month, insurance companies licensed to do business in Kentucky submit to the Department of Vehicle Regulation the vehicle identification numbers (VIN) of the vehicles their policies insure. A database compares the VINs with those of vehicles registered to Kentucky owners.

Vehicles for which there is no corresponding personal insurance policy are identified, and owners are notified that if they do not obtain insurance or provide proof of insurance within 30 days, their Kentucky registration will be canceled without further notice.

Based on results of the eight-county pilot program, the two departments estimate that 30,000 to 35,000 uninsured notices will be issued each month. Each notice will identify the vehicle in question by make, model, license plate number and VIN. A notice will be issued only once per individual case.

If a notice has been generated in apparent error - such as in cases of a mismatched VIN or a commercial vehicle erroneously listed as a personal vehicle - the notice instructs the owner to contact the county clerk or the Division of Motor Vehicle Licensing to get the matter resolved. However, owners who fail to take necessary action will be subject to citation for driving without valid registration.

"It is vitally important that vehicle owners who receive an uninsured notice follow the instructions on the notice and contact their county clerk or the Division of Motor Vehicle Licensing," said Tom Zawacki, commissioner of the Department of Vehicle Regulation. "They may also have to contact their insurance company, but that should not be the first step. They must take action. The notice cannot be ignored."

The Transportation Cabinet has a wealth of information about the Mandatory Insurance initiative on its website: <http://transportation.ky.gov/MandatoryInsurance/Pages/default.aspx>.
